Program Description

Overview

OJP is committed to advancing work that promotes civil rights and racial equity, increases access to justice, supports crime victims and individuals impacted by the justice system, strengthens community safety and protects the public from crime and evolving threats and builds trust between law enforcement and the community.

Statutory Authority

34 U.S.C. § 20103 (c)(1)(A)

Specific Information

As most victim service providers know, the individuals who come to them for services do not always fall neatly into what the public views as a “victim.” In many circumstances, persons who have been harmed may not consider themselves victims and may never seek services at all. This is especially the case when someone has suffered harm due to a criminal justice system error or failure. This gap contributes to situations where harmed individuals never receive the care they need, exacerbating the trauma they experienced, losing the opportunity to fully recover, and potentially contributing to an ongoing cycle of generational trauma.

System-related harm includes physical, sexual, financial, or emotional harm as the direct result of instances where the criminal justice system breaks down. We know very little about these victims and the types of specialized services, programs, and resources that might be most effective to meet their needs. Because the “offender” in these cases may be the system itself, or a criminal justice system actor, these events are usually not categorized as crimes in the traditional sense. Also, these cases are often misunderstood, leading to great challenges for those seeking help and preventing victims from even knowing what or if help is available. Because these individuals are not usually viewed as “real victims,” or because the harm they experienced occurred many years ago, they often do not qualify for state victim compensation benefits or victim assistance services. Examples of those experiencing harm by a system-related error or failure may include, but are not limited to—

- Individuals and families of persons injured or killed during an out-of-policy police encounter. (In some instances, these incidents are referred to as “sentinel events,” a significant, unexpected, negative outcome that is indicative of wider systemic problems. See <https://bja.ojp.gov/program/sentinel-events-initiative/sentinel-events>.)
- Persons whose rape kits were accidentally or wrongfully destroyed or not tested.
- Original victims and survivors in cases where the person who was convicted of harming them was later exonerated and found factually innocent.
- Persons convicted of crimes who were later found to be factually innocent and were exonerated.
- Criminal justice system-involved individuals who experience victimization while in police custody or while incarcerated. Custody refers to the deprivation of freedom of action or movement and does not necessarily require arrest.

As a beginning step in its efforts to better understand the scope of these victims’ needs and how they can be addressed, OVC seeks to work with selected nonprofit organizations to conduct listening sessions, needs assessments, environmental scans, and stakeholder engagement. Grant applicants must demonstrate expertise in trauma, victim services, the criminal justice system process, and alternatives to the criminal justice response. Applicants that do not possess expertise in all identified areas may partner with relevant organizations. The selected grantees will provide a report on how these populations of victims can be better identified and served and offer a set of recommendations for next steps and actions.

Goals, Objectives, Deliverables, and Timeline

Goals

The purpose of this grant program is to better understand the service needs of persons harmed by criminal justice system error or failure; develop best practices to identify these victims; determine whether services currently exist that can meet the needs of this victim population; and offer recommendations for appropriate service delivery, resources, partnerships, and tools.

Objectives

The objectives of this grant program are to:

- Identify populations of victims and survivors who have been harmed by a criminal justice system error or failure.
- Determine the service needs of these populations and conclude whether they can be met with current victim services or if new approaches and partnerships are recommended.

Deliverables

The successful applicants are expected to produce the following deliverables:

- Conduct a series of trauma-informed listening sessions (to include those with lived experience of having experienced harm from criminal justice system error or failure, and their families), needs assessments, environmental scans, and stakeholder engagements to gather the information necessary to draw conclusions for future efforts.
- Inventory all training, technical assistance, resources, and tools currently available for this population.
- Develop a report for OVC that includes a comprehensive review of the issues identified and practices studied, and that provides recommendations for future efforts.

Applicants may specialize in one area of victimization or several as long as they can demonstrate that they have the necessary subject matter expertise, which may require having additional partners, consultants, or subrecipients. Only one organization may apply as the primary grant recipient. All organizations that are designated as partners, consultants, or subrecipients must submit a letter of intent signed by the organization's principal. It is recommended that each applicant include the services of a research partner to assist with developing scientifically sound approaches to information gathering and documentation

The Goals, Objectives, and Deliverables are directly related to the performance measures that show the completed work's results, as discussed in the "Application and Submission Information" section.

Evidence-Based Programs or Practices

OJP strongly encourages the use of data and evidence in policymaking and program development for criminal justice, juvenile justice, and crime victim services. For additional information and resources on evidence-based programs or practices, see the OJP Grant Application Resource Guide.

Information Regarding Potential Evaluation of Programs and Activities

OJP may conduct or support an evaluation of the programs and activities funded under this solicitation. For additional information, see the OJP Grant Application Resource Guide section entitled "Information Regarding Potential Evaluation of Programs and Activities."

OJP Priority Areas

The Department of Justice is committed to advancing work that promotes civil rights and racial equity, increases access to justice, supports crime victims and individuals impacted by the justice system, strengthens community safety and protects the public from crime and evolving threats, and builds trust between law enforcement and the community.

1. Priority Considerations Supporting Executive Order 13985, Advancing Racial Equity and Support for Underserved Communities Through the Federal Government

Consistent with this Executive Order, the term "underserved community" refers to a population sharing a particular characteristic, as well as a geographic community, that has been systematically denied a full opportunity to participate in aspects of economic, social, and civic life or whose members have been historically underserved, marginalized, and adversely affected by inequality. Such communities include, among others, Black people, Hispanics and Latino/a/e people, Native American and other Indigenous peoples of North America (including Alaska Natives, Eskimos, and Aleuts), Asian Americans, Native Hawaiians, and Pacific Islanders.

In support of Executive Order 13985, OJP will:

A. Give priority consideration to applications that include project(s) that will promote racial equity and the removal of barriers to access and opportunity for communities that have been historically underserved, marginalized, and adversely affected by inequality, when making award decisions.

To receive this consideration, the applicant must describe how the proposed project(s) will address potential inequities and barriers to equal opportunity, and/or contribute to greater access to services for underserved and historically marginalized populations.

B. Give priority consideration to applicants that can demonstrate that their capabilities and competencies for implementing their proposed project(s) are enhanced because the applicant (or at least one proposed subrecipient that will receive at least 30% of the requested award funding, as demonstrated in the Budget Worksheet and Budget Narrative) identifies as a culturally specific organization. To receive this additional priority consideration, applicants must describe how being a culturally specific organization (or funding the culturally specific subrecipient organization(s)) will enhance their ability to implement the proposed project (s) and should also specify which culturally specific populations are intended or expected to be served or to have their needs addressed under the proposed project(s).

Culturally specific organizations are defined for purposes of this solicitation as private nonprofit or tribal organizations whose primary purpose as a whole is to provide culturally specific services to, among others, Black people, Hispanics and Latino/a/e people, Native American and other Indigenous peoples of North America (including Alaska Natives, Eskimos, and Aleuts), Asian Americans, Native Hawaiians, and/or Pacific Islanders.

Note: Addressing these priority areas is one of many factors that OJP considers in making funding decisions. Receiving priority consideration for one or more priority areas is not a guarantee of an award.

Other Review Criteria/Factors

Other important considerations for OVC include geographic diversity, strategic priorities (specifically including, but not limited to, those priority areas already mentioned), available funding, past performance, and the extent to which the Budget Worksheet and Budget Narrative (web-based form) accurately explain project costs that are reasonable, necessary, and otherwise allowable under federal law and applicable federal cost principles.

Review Process

Applications submitted under this solicitation that meet the basic minimum requirements, will be evaluated for technical merit by a peer review panel(s) in accordance with OJP peer review policy and procedures using the review criteria listed above.

OJP screens applications to ensure they meet the basic minimum requirements prior to conducting the peer review. Although specific requirements may vary, the following are common requirements applicable to all OJP solicitations:

- The application must be submitted by an eligible type of applicant.
- The application must request funding within programmatic funding constraints (if applicable).
- The application must be responsive to the scope of the solicitation.
- The application must include all items necessary to meet the basic minimum requirements.

Pursuant to the Part 200 Uniform Requirements, before award decisions are made, OJP also reviews information related to the degree of risk posed by the applicant. Among other things to help assess whether an applicant with one or more prior federal awards has a satisfactory record with respect to performance, integrity, and business ethics, OJP checks whether the applicant is listed in SAM as excluded from receiving a federal award.

In addition, if OJP anticipates that an award will exceed $250,000 in federal funds, OJP also must review and consider any information about the applicant that appears in the non-public segment of the integrity and performance system accessible through SAM (currently, the Federal Awardee Performance and Integrity Information System, FAPIIS).

Important note on FAPIIS: An applicant may review and comment on any information about itself that currently appears in FAPIIS and was entered by a federal awarding agency. OJP will consider such comments by the applicant, in addition to the other information in FAPIIS, in its assessment of the risk posed by the applicant.

Absent explicit statutory authorization or written delegation of authority to the contrary, all final award decisions will be made by the Assistant Attorney General, who may consider not only peer review ratings and OVC recommendations, but also other factors as indicated in this section.
