Landmarks in Victims' Rights and Services

Crime Victims' Rights in America: A Historical Overview

National Crime Victims' Rights Week (NCVRW) creates an opportunity for communities to come together and reflect on the history of crime victims' rights. The landmarks in victims' rights and services outline this progress from 1965 to the present by highlighting—

- the creation and growth of local, state, and national victim service organizations;
- the passage of key federal and state legislation;

- notable court decisions;
- groundbreaking reports and studies; and
- advances in victim assistance approaches.

This section of the NCVRW Resource Guide tells the story of our Nation's capacity to help crime victims rebuild their lives. Use these milestones to inform your speeches, op-ed columns, media interviews, and other education efforts. Craft "This Day in History" posts that are relevant to your social media networks. However you share this information, let it remind your community of how far we've come. Let it provide inspiration and hope for the work ahead, both during NCVRW and throughout the year.

 - President Bush signs the Adam Walsh Child Protection and Safety Act of 2006. Along with increasing supervision of sex offenders, this wide-ranging legislation also extends the federal Crime Victims' Rights Act to federal habeas corpus proceedings arising out of state convictions, eliminates the statute of limitations for federal prosecution of certain sexual offenses and child abduction, and extends the civil remedy for child sex crime victims to persons victimized as children, even if their injuries did not surface until the person became an adult.
 - Attorney General Gonzales launches Project Safe Childhood, aimed at ending Internet-based child sexual exploitation. This nationwide project creates locally designed partnerships of federal, state, local, and tribal law enforcement agencies together with community leaders to develop a coordinated strategy to prevent, investigate, and prosecute sexual predators, abusers, and pornographers who target children. All U.S.
- Attorneys are charged with taking the lead in designing a strategic plan for their community.
- The United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit decides Kenna v. U.S. District Court for the Central District of California, in which the court considered whether the Crime Victims' Rights Act portion of the Justice for All Act gave victims the right to speak at sentencing hearings. The case involved a father and son who swindled dozens of victims. The defendants pled guilty to wire fraud and money laundering. More than 60 victims submitted victim impact statements. At the father's sentencing hearing, several victims spoke about the effects of the crimes, but at the son's sentencing, the judge refused to allow the victims to speak. The court held that the district judge had made a mistake, and made three key points: (1) in passing the Crime Victims' Rights Act, it was the intent of Congress to allow victims to speak at sentencing hearings, not just to submit victim impact statements; (2) victims have a right to speak even if there is more than one criminal sentencing; and (3) the remedy for a crime victim denied the right to speak at a sentencing hearing is to have the sentence vacated and a new sentencing hearing held in which the victims are allowed to speak.
 - DOJ issues its final rule implementing the new International Terrorism Victim Expense Reimbursement Program (ITVERP). This new federally administered program extends crime victim compensation to American victims of terrorism abroad, reimbursing them for direct, out-of-pocket expenses resulting from an act of terror.
 - President Bush signs the Older Americans Act Reauthorization (OAA), which includes victim-related provisions. It requires the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services to develop a long-term plan for a national response to elder abuse; improves access to programs and services under OAA by addressing the needs of older individuals with limited English proficiency; promotes multidisciplinary responses by states and Indian tribes to elder abuse, neglect, and exploitation; and preserves the long-term care ombudsman program.

and emerging crime victim issues; and expanding the field's capacity to meet the demands of the 21st century.

- Congress passes and President Obama signs the reauthorization of the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA 2013). The measure expands protections for lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender survivors; Native American and Native Alaskan survivors; and teens and young adults. The reauthorization allows grant funds to be used to develop and promote legislation and policies that enhance best practices for responding to violence against women. It adds stalking to several grant programs, including Grants to Encourage Arrests, and to campus safety provisions for the first time. It ensures that sexual assault victims do not incur the cost of forensic exams by requiring jurisdictions to provide exams to victims free of charge and without any out-of-pocket expense (rather than victims being reimbursed after paying the cost themselves, permissible previously). The law also, for the first time, provides that tribes will be able to exercise their sovereign power to investigate, prosecute, convict, and sentence non-Indians who assault Indian spouses or dating partners or violate a protection order in Indian Country.
- Included in VAWA 2013 is the SAFER Act, which requires DOJ to ensure that at least 75 percent of the Debbie Smith DNA Backlog Grant funds are used to analyze backlogged sexual assault kits and expand the capacity of labs to test such evidence. It allows Debbie Smith grants to be used to conduct audits of untested sexual assault kits in law enforcement custody, as well as untested kits held by labs. It also requires that protocols for the effective processing of DNA evidence be established within 18 months.
- The Trafficking Victims Protection Act Reauthorization is also adopted as part of VAWA 2013. Along with reauthorizing important grant programs, the law makes it a crime to destroy, conceal, or confiscate someone's passport for more than 48 hours for the purpose of smuggling or controlling that person. It also requires that state plans for foster care and adoption assistance include prevention measures and responses to the trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children.

- Secretary of Defense Chuck Hagel releases a memo directing the immediate implementation of various measures to strengthen the military's sexual assault prevention and response programs. Victim-related measures include creating a program to provide legal representation to sexual assault victims throughout the justice process; providing commanders with options to assign or transfer a service member accused of committing sexual assault; and changing the Manual for Courts-Martial to allow victims to give input to the post-trial action phase of courts-martial.
- OVC releases updated regulations for the VOCA Assistance formula grants. The new regulations are designed to increase the effectiveness of such funding by increasing flexibility, reducing the administrative burden related to the funding, broadening the types of services that can be funded, drawing attention to previously underserved populations of victims, and supporting the training of volunteers who provide direct services to victims.

- Crime Victims' Fund deposits total $3.59 billion.
- President Obama signs the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2014, which contains numerous reforms to address sexual assault in the military, including requiring independent review of decisions not to refer charges for trial and limiting command discretion to modify court-martial findings; removing the statute of limitations on sexual assault; creating a Special Victims' Counsel to provide independent legal assistance to sexual assault victims; implementing anti-retaliation policies for victims who report sexual assault; and allowing victims to apply for a permanent change of station or unit transfer.

- The White House announces the release of the Federal Strategic Action Plan on Services for Victims of Human Trafficking in the United States. The plan outlines steps federal agencies will take to identify all victims of human trafficking and implement a victim services network that is comprehensive, trauma-informed, and responsive.
- In January 2014, the White House Council on Women and Girls releases Rape and Sexual Assault: A Renewed Call to Action, a report that analyzes the most recent data on rape and sexual assault in the United States. It identifies who is at risk of victimization, examines the cost of sexual violence (to both survivors and communities), and outlines the criminal justice response. The report describes the steps that the Administration has taken to combat rape and sexual assault and provides recommendations for further action.
- Under a provision of VAWA 2013, DOJ selects three American Indian tribes for a pilot program to extend criminal jurisdiction in Indian Country. VAWA 2013 recognizes that tribes have a right to exercise special domestic violence criminal jurisdiction over certain defendants, regardless of their Indian or non-Indian status, who commit acts of domestic or dating violence in Indian Country. This provision takes effect in 2015, but the pilot project allows selected tribes to begin exercising special jurisdiction sooner.
- President Obama issues a Presidential Memorandum to establish the White House Task Force to Protect Students from Sexual Assault, to share best practices to increase transparency, enforcement, public awareness, and interagency coordination to prevent violence and support victims of sexual assault on college campuses. In April, the task force releases its first report, Not Alone, which provides recommendations to school administrators.
- President Obama signs the Kilah Davenport Child Protection Act of 2013, which directs the U.S. Attorney General to issue a state-by-state report on child abuse laws within 6 months, with a particular focus on penalties for cases of severe child abuse. The law also amends the federal criminal code to enhance penalties for child abuse committed by habitual offenders.
- President Obama launches the My Brother's Keeper initiative to address persistent opportunity gaps faced by boys and young men of color and to ensure that all young people can reach their full potential. The initiative comprises six milestones, the last one being “Keeping Kids on Track and Giving Them Second Chances.” A key goal of this milestone is to address the overrepresentation of African American and Latino men in the criminal and juvenile justice systems and reduce the rates of violence and victimization for all young people.
- Congress appropriates funding to implement some of the recommendations in Vision 21: Transforming Victim Services. For the first time ever, OVC makes awards to support initiatives such as capacity building at the state level and access to services for American citizens and Lawful Permanent Residents at the national and international level through innovative technology.
- President Obama signs the Sean and David Goldman International Child Abduction Prevention and Return Act of 2014. This Act directs the Secretary of State to report annually to Congress on international child abduction cases and ensure that U.S. diplomatic and consular missions properly report these abduction cases. The Secretary of State will also establish memoranda of understanding with countries that are unlikely to join the Hague Abduction Convention and advise the President on countries that do not cooperate in or fail to resolve abduction cases.
- President Obama signs the Victims of Child Abuse Reauthorization Act of 2013. This Act authorizes appropriations for children’s advocacy centers and the development of multidisciplinary child abuse investigation and prosecution programs. Additionally, the Act authorizes appropriations to national organizations that provide technical assistance and training to attorneys and professionals working with the criminal prosecution of child abuse cases.

- The White House Task Force to Protect Students from Sexual Assault releases a resource guide to support students, faculty, administrators, and communities around the country in preventing sexual violence and improving the response to violence at colleges and universities. The resource guide compiles guidance, tools, model policies and procedures, training and technical assistance, funding opportunities, and public messaging materials. The task force also releases a sample memorandum of understanding to assist campuses and law enforcement agencies in working together to protect students and address the needs of sexual assault survivors.
- OVC, in partnership with the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, releases the supporting Male Survivors of Violence Demonstration Initiative, designed to enhance and support trauma-informed systems of care for male crime victims and, in particular, boys and young men of color. The initiative seeks to strengthen victim service providers' knowledge and skills to produce innovative programs and practices that foster a better understanding among criminal and juvenile justice systems, and guide service providers regarding the rights and needs of these boys and young men.
- DOJ, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services launch a federal Domestic Violence and Housing Technical Assistance Consortium to provide national training, technical assistance, and resource development on domestic violence and housing. The consortium supports national training and technical assistance awards to develop resources and foster increased collaboration among domestic violence and homeless service providers to better address the critical housing needs of victims of domestic violence and their children.

- President Obama signs the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2016, which provides Special Victims Counsel to victims of sexual assault, including noncivilian U.S. Department of Defense (DoD) employees. The Act also requires standardized training for these counsels, anti-retaliation and privacy protections for victims, and victim notification of the availability of such counsel. The Act also directs DoD to develop a plan to improve its response to sexual assaults against male employees.
- DOJ releases Identifying and Preventing Gender Bias in Law Enforcement Response to Sexual Assault and Domestic Violence. This guidance is accompanied by a roundtable discussion and report, which provide recommendations from key stakeholders on improving the law enforcement response to victims of sexual violence, especially in vulnerable populations.
- President Obama signs the Consolidated Appropriations Act. This legislation reauthorizes the James Zadroga 9/11 Health and Compensation Act, which provides health benefits and compensation to individuals who were injured or killed in 9/11 rescue and recovery efforts and includes the September 11th Victim Compensation Fund as well. The Act also establishes the Victims of State Sponsored Terrorism Fund to pay civil judgments against certain foreign state sponsors of terrorism.

- Crime Victims Fund deposits total $1.48 billion.
- The White House announces a set of executive actions to address gun violence. Those actions include expanding and bolstering the background check system to cover certain sales that take place online and at gun shows, supporting research into firearm safety technology, and providing more funding for mental health treatment, FBI staff, and agents with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives.
- The Bureau of Justice Statistics releases the Campus Climate Survey Validation Study. This report presents the results of a nine-school assessment of undergraduate sexual victimization, including estimates of the prevalence of sexual assault, rape, and sexual battery during the 2014–2015 academic year.

- OVC launches an initiative to reduce language barriers for underserved victims. The two-pronged approach addresses training and technical assistance for victim service providers and enhances OVC’s ability to incorporate language access into its programs.
- The Office on Violence Against Women releases the National Protocol for Sexual Abuse Medical Forensic Examinations, Pediatric (Pediatric SAFE Protocol). This protocol provides specific guidance on forensic medical examinations and outlines the need for a coordinated community response to sexual assault investigations.
- DOJ’s National Institute of Justice publishes its research report, Violence Against American Indian and Alaska Native Women and Men, which examines the prevalence of intimate partner and sexual violence and the impact of such violence on local communities. The study found that four in five American Indian and Alaska Native adults have been victims of violence.
- President Obama signs the Native American Children’s Safety Act, providing protections for Native American children in foster care, including requiring that tribes establish systems for criminal background checks and for accessing tribal and state registries before placements.
- The White House convenes the first United State of Women summit to examine issues of gender equality, including violence against women.
- OVC publishes a final rule to implement the victim assistance formula grant program authorized by the Victims of Crime Act (VOCA) of 1984. This rule codifies and updates existing program guidelines to reflect statutory and policy changes since 1984. The final rule provides greater flexibility for state use of VOCA funds to support a continuum of victim services, including comprehensive legal assistance, transitional housing, relocation, forensic interviews, and medical examinations. It also clarifies support for underserved victims and eliminates a previous restriction against using VOCA funds to serve victims in detention and correctional facilities.
- DOJ’s Office on Violence Against Women (OVW) announces more than $3.2 million to help communities prevent domestic violence homicides. These funds will go to programs that seek to improve the criminal justice system’s response to victims and that provide technical assistance and training. OVW also announces the addition of Miami and Winnebago Counties in Illinois as replication sites for the evidence-based Lethality Assessment Program model, which encourages victims to access domestic violence support and shelter services.
- DOJ releases the 2016 National Strategy for Child Exploitation Prevention and Interdiction. The strategy provides a comprehensive assessment of the nature and scope of crimes against children, including child pornography, sextortion, live streaming of child sexual abuse, child sex trafficking, child sex tourism, and sex offense registry violations. The report also includes a section on the unique challenges faced in Indian Country.
- Together, OVW and OVC award 10 grants totaling $9.85 million to various national and local organizations to help implement DOJ’s Guidance on Identifying and Preventing Gender Bias in Law Enforcement Response to Sexual Assault and Domestic Violence. The grants fund enhanced training and technical assistance across the Nation, research and evaluation, and implementation resources for law enforcement agencies.
- OVW announces the launch of the National Domestic Violence and Firearms Resource Center website, Safer Families, Safer Communities. The website is part of a newly established resource center that supports implementing and enforcing firearm restrictions on domestic violence perpetrators to reduce domestic violence-related crimes involving firearms, particularly homicide.

- President Obama signs the Survivors' Bill of Rights on October 7, 2016, which ensures that sexual assault survivors who fall under federal jurisdiction have access to sexual assault forensic exams and information about the testing and results of that evidence. The law allows survivors to request that their kits be stored until the statute of limitations expires.
- The U.S. Department of Defense releases The DoD Plan to Prevent and Respond to Sexual Assault of Military Men. Under this plan, the department will convene a working group to address four objectives: developing an outreach plan, increasing understanding of how men experience assault, tailoring support services and health care to better meet men's needs, and developing metrics to track the plan's progress.
- Congress reauthorizes the Emmett Till Unsolved Civil Rights Crime Act (first passed in 2007), which obligates DOJ and, specifically, the FBI to examine the investigation and prosecution of criminal civil rights statute violations that resulted in a death prior to 1980. Previously, the Act pertained only to fatal statute violations prior to 1970. All authorities with jurisdiction are called to coordinate, share, and discuss information pertaining to the Act with civil rights organizations, institutions of higher education, and DOJ entities; support the full accounting of all victims; hold perpetrators of racially motivated crimes accountable; keep families regularly informed about the investigation's status; and develop a public repository of related documents disclosed under the Freedom of Information Act.
- President Obama signs the Justice for All Reauthorization Act of 2016. This wide-reaching legislation increases access to restitution, reauthorizes victim notification grants, reduces the rape-kit backlog by allocating funds for testing and auditing kits, and defrays costs associated with DNA testing after conviction.

- Crime Victims Fund deposits total $6.58 billion.
- DOJ announces the Justice Department's National Strategy to Combat Human Trafficking, as required by the 2015 Justice for Victims of Trafficking Act. The national strategy sets out a plan to improve coordination within DOJ and develop strategies within each federal district to end human trafficking.
- The National Census of Victim Service Providers (NCVSP) is the first-ever national count of all programs responding to victims and survivors of crime and abuse, providing the most comprehensive picture of the victim services field to date by identifying the size and scope of the field. Funded by OVC and the Bureau of Justice Statistics, the NCVSP will capture basic information about the field, help reveal gaps and opportunities, and result in the first national all-inclusive list of active victim service providers.
- The Safe Housing Partnerships website, a product of the Domestic Violence and Housing Technical Assistance Consortium, launches to provide useful resources and tools that support victim advocates and providers at the critical intersection of domestic violence, sexual assault, homelessness, and housing. Funded and supported by an unprecedented partnership between DOJ, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, and the Department of Housing and Urban Development, this multiyear consortium brings together national, state, and local organizations to collaboratively build and strengthen technical assistance for both housing/homelessness providers and domestic violence service providers.
- Attorney General Jeff Sessions announces the creation of the U.S. Department of Justice Task Force on Crime Reduction and Public Safety. Members are from DOJ agencies, including the FBI, the Drug Enforcement Agency, the U.S. Marshals Service, and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives.

combating the global cyber threat. The task force releases its first report in July 2018.

- The FBI releases its annual Crime in the United States Report, part of the FBI's Uniform Crime Reports, revealing that the nationwide rate of crime decreased in 2017, after increases in 2015 and 2016.
- DOJ announces $35 million in funding to support law enforcement agencies in combating the illegal manufacturing and distribution of methamphetamine, heroin, and prescription opioids; and another $35 million to establish new programs to provide services for child victims of the opioid crisis. The latter is funded under OVC's Enhancing Community Responses to the Opioid Crisis: Serving Our Youngest Crime Victims program and includes awards to 41 sites and a technical assistance provider, totaling $29.8 million to help youth impacted by the opioid crisis.
- DOJ launches a new hate crimes website to provide a centralized portal for the Department's hate crimes resources for law enforcement, media representatives, researchers, victims, advocacy groups, and other related organizations and individuals.

- Crime Victims Fund deposits total $495.
- OVC releases "National TeleNursing Center \(NTC\) Sustainability," an evaluation of the sustainability and possible expansion of the OVC-funded NTC. The Massachusetts Department of Public Health implemented the NTC sexual assault nurse examiner (SANE) program to develop and evaluate telemedicine for providing consultation to SANE nurses conducting forensic sexual assault medical examinations in remote and underserved hospitals. The OVC-sponsored report presents and evaluates three core themes of sustainability: building capacity for sustainability, building capacity for technical assistance, and building sustainability through nursing scholarship and leadership. It also identifies some of the unique challenges facing NTC expansion, including interstate licensing requirements; differing procedures, protocols, and policies for testing evidence kits, as well as differences in evidence kits themselves; and general financial sustainability of the programs.
- The American Bar Association, with funding support from OVC, releases an update to the 2005 Elder Abuse Fatality Review Teams: A Replication Manual to guide communities interested in establishing elder abuse fatality review teams to examine deaths caused by or related to elder abuse. This document was updated to include information on the criteria and selection of cases for review, confidentiality practices, preventing "blame and shame," and a comparison of 27 categories of professionals serving as team members.
- President Trump proclaims May 3 as the first Missing and Murdered American Indians and Alaska Natives Awareness Day to draw attention to the horrible acts of violence committed against American Indian and Alaska Native people, particularly women and children.
- On June 28, Attorney General William P. Barr declares a law enforcement emergency in rural Alaska under the Emergency Federal Law Enforcement Assistance Program, making $6 million immediately available for critical law enforcement needs of Alaska Native villages, including the hiring, equipping, and training of Village Public Safety Officers and Tribal Police Officers working in rural Alaska; and for mobile detention facilities. In addition, the DOJ Office on Community Oriented Policing Services awards $4.5 million for 20 officer positions, along with equipment and training, to Alaska Native grantees; and the DOJ Bureau of Justice Assistance makes $162,000 available to the U.S. Attorney's Office to establish an additional Project Safe Neighborhoods target site encompassing rural Alaska.
- Recognizing that Alaska has the highest per capita crime rate in the country and the unique circumstances of Alaska's geographical and jurisdictional landscape, Attorney General Barr announces a Rural Alaska Violent Crime Reduction Working Group. The working group will look for ways to build the capacity of federal, state, and tribal law enforcement in rural Alaska, with a particular emphasis on crimes of domestic violence and crimes against children.

- On July 25, Congress approves, and the President signs into law, the Supporting and Treating Officers In Crisis Act of 2019, which amends the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 to expand support for police officer family services, including care for stress reduction, suicide prevention, mental health programs, and other purposes. The bill reauthorizes $7.5 million annually (for Fiscal Years 2020–2024) for grant programs to provide training and technical assistance to support law enforcement officers and their families. This includes specialized training for identifying, reporting, and responding to officer mental health crises and suicide.
- On July 29, Congress approves, and the President signs into law, the Never Forget the Heroes: James Zadroga, Ray Pfeifer, and Luis Alvarez Permanent Authorization of the September 11th Victim Compensation Fund Act. This bill funds through Fiscal Year 2022 the September 11th Victim Compensation Fund of 2001. Additionally, the bill modifies the Victim Compensation Fund to allow claims to be filed until October 2030, to require that its policies and procedures be reassessed at least once every 5 years (currently, at least once annually), to require claimants to be paid for the amount by which a claim was reduced on the basis of insufficient funding, to remove the cap on noneconomic damages in certain circumstances, and to periodically adjust the annual limit on economic-loss compensation for inflation. It also provides statutory authority for the Attorney General to appoint a special master and up to two deputy special masters to administer the Victim Compensation Fund.
- DOJ announces more than $274 million in funding to improve public safety and serve crime victims in American Indian and Alaska Native communities, including a $167.2 million set-aside for the Tribal Victim Services Set-Aside Program. Under this program, OVC directly awards nearly $107.3 million to 175 applicants to help tribes develop, expand, and improve services to victims of crime. Set-aside funds are also awarded to tribal communities to address specific gaps in victim services, and for substantial training and technical assistance.
- On October 28, President Trump establishes the Presidential Commission on Law Enforcement and the Administration of Justice to study ways to reduce crime and restore the public’s confidence in law enforcement. The Commission will examine how certain social conditions affect law enforcement’s ability to police; ways to improve officer recruitment, training, and retention; major issues facing rural and tribal law enforcement; issues affecting the physical safety and mental health of police officers; methodologies, techniques, and targeted deterrence strategies to reduce crime.
- OVC releases its research review, What We Know About Identity Theft and Fraud Victims From Research- and Practice-Based Evidence. The OVC-sponsored report summarizes the findings from research and practice on victimization due to identity theft and fraud, and identifies research gaps that should be filled to improve the Nation’s response to identity fraud and other fraud victimization.
- The DOJ Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) releases Victim Service Providers in the United States, 2017, which provides statistics from the National Census of Victim Service Providers, the first national data collection on the number and characteristics of these organizations. The report describes the types of organizations that serve victims, maps their locations, and reports on the rate of victim service providers per 100,000 U.S. residents by state. The census was conducted by BJS with support from OVC.
- On November 26, President Trump establishes the Task Force on Missing or Murdered Native Americans and Alaska Natives to develop protocols for new and unsolved cases, form multijurisdictional cold case teams, establish greater clarity of roles and responsibilities, and facilitate better coordination and collaboration with tribal communities—resulting in long-term strategies to address complex issues.
- On December 30, Congress approves, and the President signs into law, the Debbie Smith Reauthorization Act of 2019, which reauthorizes grants that support state and local efforts to process DNA evidence in rape kits. Specifically, the law reauthorizes through Fiscal Year 2024 the following: grants under the Debbie Smith DNA Backlog Grant Program; grants to provide DNA training and education for law enforcement personnel, corrections personnel, and court officers; and grants under the Sexual Assault Forensic Exam Program.

- On January 30, President Trump signs the Executive Order on Combating Human Trafficking and Online Child Exploitation in the United States. The executive order expands prevention education programs, promotes housing opportunities for survivors, makes removing child sexual abuse material from the Internet a priority, improves methodologies for estimating the prevalence of human trafficking, and creates a website listing all federal resources for combating trafficking.
- DOJ launches the National Elder Fraud Hotline to help combat fraud against older Americans and provide services to victims. The hotline, managed by OVC, connects callers age 60 and older with a caseworker who can assist them with reporting a crime and connect them with other resources, as needed.
- Congress authorizes a tribal set-aside from the Crime Victims Fund to provide funding to improve services for victims of crime in tribal communities. Under this program, OVC directly awards more than $112 million to help tribes develop, expand, and improve services for victims of crime and other public safety initiatives by providing funding, programming, and technical assistance.
- DOJ announces more than $35 million in funding to provide safe, stable housing and appropriate services for victims of human trafficking through the first OVC grant program focused on transitional housing. The program provides transitional and short-term housing assistance for trafficking victims, and offers the support needed to help victims locate permanent housing, secure employment, and obtain occupational training and counseling.
- In July 2020, the DOJ Office of Justice Programs announces the consolidation of its law enforcement, juvenile justice, and victim services human trafficking initiatives into a new Human Trafficking Division within OVC. This consolidation better aligns funding, training, assistance, and other resources to bring traffickers to justice and serve trafficking victims.
- In August 2020, DOJ announces the establishment of a new Tribal Division within OVC to ensure that the office is appropriately staffed to serve American Indian and Alaska Native communities by streamlining the distribution and management of tribal grant awards.
- In commemoration of the 20th anniversary of the Trafficking Victims Protection Act, OVC launches the Represent Resilience art initiative, a virtual display of original artwork by survivors, advocates, and anti-trafficking professionals across the country.
- On October 10, 2020, Congress passes, and the President signs into law, Savanna's Act, which directs DOJ to review, revise, and develop law enforcement and justice protocols to address the crisis of missing and murdered Native Americans. The bill requires DOJ to conduct specific outreach to tribes, tribal organizations, and urban Indian organizations; develop regionally appropriate guidelines for responding to cases of missing or murdered Native Americans; provide training and technical assistance to tribes and law enforcement agencies on how to implement the new guidelines; and report statistics on missing or murdered Native Americans.
- On October 10, 2020, Congress passes, and the President signs into law, the Not Invisible Act of 2019, which promotes the coordination of efforts to reduce violent crime within Indian Country and against Native Americans. The new law mandates the coordination of prevention efforts, grants, and programs related to missing, murdered, and trafficked Native Americans; establishment of a joint commission on violent crime within Indian Country and against Native Americans; and recommendations for identifying, reporting, and responding to instances of missing persons, murder, and human trafficking.
